Having Microsoft donate software to schools is hardly a punishment, in fact it is quite the opposite. By having their software in schools, for free, they're making sure that children learn to specifically use their software every where. If microsoft software is all that people know how to use then doesn't that ensure them even more market share? Of course it does. It's a mockery of justice and an insult to the populace for our officials to try and pull a "fast one" on us like that.
